A late night with Dog Trumpet and Scott Edgar & The Universe

...quirky beautiful stuff

Dog Trumpet have been doggedly touring to celebrate the release of their 4th critically acclaimed album Antisocial Tendencies. Both rollicking and reflective, Reg Mombassa (Mental As Anything) and Peter O'Doherty (Mental As Anything) have produced some melodic psychedelic country folk pop songs suggest the sky, weather boards, bricks, grazed knuckles, page-boy haircuts, grass and late afternoon shadows, though not necessarily in that order.

Dog Trumpet have completed their fourth album Antisocial Tendencies released March 2007. With patient attention to detail over five years of songwriting and recording, the brothers (with different surnames) Peter O'Doherty and Reg Mombassa have crafted an indelible follow-up to 2002's eponymous Dog Trumpet release. Recorded by Peter at his Big Brain Studio in Sydney on a vintage 16-track reel-to-reel tape recorder the brothers sing and play all guitars, bass, harp and keyboards with embellishment from stellar guest musicians.

Scott Edgar & The Universe is fronted by the inestimable ARIA Award winning Scott Edgar (Tripod) and backed by The Universe, which is made up of stars; Mick Meagher (bass), Rory McDougall (drums) and Eamon McNelis (trumpet). This is pop colliding with roots, and country swing. A blazingly vibey affair with 60's rock sensibilities packed into songs you'll wake up with the next day.

Scott Edgar & The Universe have enjoyed radio play nation wide on ABC Radio and acclaim for their self titled debut album. The album has proved a sideways excursion for Edgar's musical comedy writing in Tripod. Edgar gives each song its own gorgeous identity, his writing is deft and assured combining rootsy stomp with delicate awkwardness.

After a highly successful packed out double bill with Dog Trumpet at the coveted Annandale Hotel in Sydney, this night of quirky beautiful stuff will play for two nights only.
