Deborah Frances-White's How To Get Almost Anyone To Want To Sleep With You (UK)

Fresh from a completely sold out Edinburgh Fringe season, British stand-up comedian and screenwriter Deborah Frances-White hits Melbourne with a mission: to get the Festival flirting.

A brilliant combination of comedy and self-help, her show gives audiences the inside scoop on what the other sex is thinking, how a hat can help and, ultimately, how any man can be turned into James Bond! Packed with solid advice for both sexes, this hilarious show will leave those in a relationship feeling desired and inspired, and those who are single feeling like the sexiest person in the bar who could go home with anyone.

Deborah is the artistic director of London based improvisation company The Spontaneity Shop. They recently celebrated their 10th anniversary by selling a TV show to FremantleMedia. She is in high demand as a motivational speaker, is a regular guest on BBC 5 Live's Breakfast Show and has just sold her first Hollywood screenplay to Fox Searchlight. Obviously, it's a romantic comedy.
