Dolls Cabaret

They're young, smart, sexy and full of sass. They're the bright young comedians from Tumbleweed Theatrical Productions, back with a vengeance in their latest production Dolls Cabaret.

At the 2008 Melbourne International Comedy Festival, they received rave reviews for their all-girl show Princess Cabaret, an acrid take on the Disney Princess stereotype.

This year's targets are the dolls of their childhood years; from the sexed up Bratz Dolls, to the orphan Cabbage Patch Kids. You played with them for years. Now they're out of the box and ready to play with you!

"The great thing about Dolls is that it has something for everyone. From the people who idolised these characters in their childhood, to lovers of cabaret. It's entertainment with a bit of bite" says writer/director Brydie Lee-Kennedy.

The brains behind the operation: Kennedy, Jo Bourke, Erin Turner, Kate Leaver, Amy Louise Hume, and Sophie Miller met at Sydney University.

½ "...pacey, cheeky and a lot of fun." The Age

"This is a must show see and 10 out of 10, I want to go see it again right now"
Funny Tonne, 2008
